| Given Cincinnati's performance, where they only managed to score 3 touchdowns in their first 4 games, it's hard for me to back them this week. In their last matchup, remarkably, J. Chase accounted for all three scores. Coach Pete Carroll will undoubtedly devise a strategy to counter both Chase and Burrow especially coming off a bye and 2 weeks to prepare. ATSSSTATS.com tells us... When playing away in October, the Seahawks hold an impressive 11-4 straight-up (SU) record, a notable 7-3-1 record ATS as a road underdog by 3 points or less, and off the back of a three-game winning streak, they stand 6-3 SU. Currently, the Seahawks are riding a wave with 3 consecutive SU and ATS wins and have just returned from a well-deserved bye week. As of Friday morning, Seattle is a Frogtown favorable pick. | | | | | SEA 44% | |

| In their last 8 series meetings, Jax has a 7-1 record. However, according to ATSSSTATS.com, Indianapolis boasts a 7-3 record on the road following consecutive home games. Furthermore, in the past 5 years, the Colts are 10-5 ATS when playing away following two consecutive ATS losses and 10-5 ATS when positioned as an away dog with a point spread between 3.5 to 6.5. Moreover, teams returning from a win in London have a 5-9 ATS record. Notably, Jax is coming off two consecutive victories in London and will now face a division game without a break. Quarterback Minshew has proven to be a strong backup. He holds a 6-3 record against division opponents as a starting quarterback. Just last week, he led the Colts to a DIV win with an impressive QB rating of 112.1. Despite predictions, the Colts are currently leading the AFC South with a 2-1 record, placing them at the top of their division. A win this Sunday would further cement their lead in the division, pushing them to a 3-1 standing, surpassing preseason favorites. | | | | | IND 80% | |

| The Saints, boasting the league's 2nd-best scoring and the 4th-best overall defense, head into Houston with heightened confidence, after shutting out New England and limiting them to a season-low of just 156 yards. The Texans are 0-6 ATS after a loss as a dog when facing a team who've just won as a dog. The Saints are also an impressive 14-2 ATS in their 2nd of back-to-back road games and 6-1 ATS away vs the AFC South. New Orleans is Frogtown's favorable side as of Friday early morning. | | | | | NOR 40% | |

| The Bills haven't fared well when favored by over 9 points, recording a 0-4 mark. Conversely, since 1996, the Giants have an impressive 11-3 ATS record on the road, particularly after enduring a three-game losing streak. Historically, NFL teams boasting a winning percentage of .600 or higher, who are coming back from London and have just suffered both a straight-up and against-the-spread loss, are 0-5 SU & ATS standing. However, there's an optimistic pattern: NFL squads returning from London games, in which they scored 30 or fewer points, have a promising 14-7-1 SU and 15-5-2 ATS history. Additionally, this season's data indicates that all teams favored by 10 or more points have a 4-1 record ATS. This is going to be a great sample to watch the line movement and splits if we wish to make a wager. Let's check back in on Sunday at noon. | | | | | NYG 39% | | |

| Dallas boasts a strong record of 4-0 before bye weeks and 4-1 in their last five Monday games. Additionally, they have a 10-3 record in the second of back-to-back road games. In their series against the LA Chargers, Dallas has been dominant recently with a 3-1 record in their last four matchups. The Chargers, on the other hand, have an impressive 5-1 record in their fifth game of the season, 4-0 after playing Las Vegas, and a 3-1 record on Mondays over the past three years. Since 2009, NFL underdogs coming off a Thursday loss by 14 points or more have proven to be a good bet, recording a 27-15-1 ATS. The Cowboys have also shown resilience with an 8-2-0 ATS record when playing away and coming off a single loss over the past seven years. It's also noteworthy that the Chargers are coming off a bye week. | | | | | DAL 38% | | | |
